ⓐ St. Mary Magdalene, Bermondsey. Mostly 1675–9 by Charles Stanton. 'Gothic' west front added in 1830.

ⓑ Rotherhithe. We skirt this ancient community. The first Greenland Dock was built in 1697 for whalers. A network of small docks was finished in 1864 and was devoted to the timber trade. The docks have now been filled in and redeveloped with expensive private housing.

ⓒ Albury Street, Deptford. Worth a look on your way. Laid out in 1706–1717 with splendid merchants' houses. The door brackets have cherubs and foliage. Only 6 houses remain! "The story of Albury Street is one of appalling beaurocratic bungling," says Pevsner. Nearby is —

ⓔ Greenwich. St. Alfege's Church; Wren's Royal Naval Hospital; National Maritime Museum; Cutty Sark; Gypsy Moth. Enough?

ⓕ Island Gardens. From here a superb view of the Royal Naval Hospital, with Inigo Jones' Queens House framed between the domes. Above rises Greenwich Park.

ⓖ Isle of Dogs. The world's biggest building site. ⊛ A special fact-sheet will be issued about the redevelopment of the docklands.

ⓗ St. George's-in-the-East. by Hawksmoor, 1715–23. Interior destroyed during war.

ⓘ St. Katherine's Dock. Thomas Telford, 1825. Many of the original buildings were demolished, and the dock is now a marina, museum and offices.

ⓙ Tower Bridge. Built 1886–94. The Gothic style was required by Parliament because of the nearby Tower of London.
