Because Unlock resources are always designed with the needs of a particular local group in mind they will often not be suitable for 'off the peg' use with different groups in different places. The resources are therefore provided mostly as practical examples of the learning approach that Unlock uses, as an introduction to Unlock's learning style, and to inspire you to produce your own sessions, in a way that is relevant to your own context; although you can simply use them as they stand if you find they are suitable.
